The storm, that like a shapeless wreck,
Had strew'd with rigging all the deck
That tars for sharks had given a feast,
And left the ship a hulk _ had ceas'd:

When Jack, as with his messmates dear,
He shar'd the Grog their hearts to cheer,
Took from his bacco box a quid
And spelled for comfort on the lid

"If you loves I as I loves you,"
"No pair so happy as we two."

The battle, that with horror grim,
Had madly ravag'd life and limb,
Had scuppers drenched with human gore,
And widow'd many a wife _ was o'er

When Jack to his companions dear
First paid the tribute of a tear
Then, as his bocco box he held,
Restor'd his comfort as he spelled _

"If you loves I as I loves you,"
"No pair so happy as we two."

The voyage that had been long and hard,
But that had yielded full reward,
That brought each Sailor to his friend
Happy and rich _ was at an end:

When Jack, his toils and perils o'er,
Behold his Nancy on the shore
He then the bacco box display'd
And cried, and seized the yielding maid,

"If you loves I as I loves you,"
"No pair so happy as we two."
